Misses Burn and Young at Strand.

At the Strand, Saturday on Tuesday and Wednesday, will appear Theda Bara in "Her Greatest Love"; a story of sacrifice, in which Miss Bara has the leading role. It is a photoplay of conflicting emotions, in which the daughter is the price paid to satisfy the ambitions of her mother. Miss Bara plays the part of Vera Herbert, and many of the scenes in the picturization were laid in Russia.

Charles Murray in "Her Fame and Shame," a new Keystone comedy, will be on the same program on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Clara Kimball Young will be presented in "The Price She Paid," from the story of David Graham Phillips. It carries a message especially for women who envy their rich neighbors.

"Film Spoilers" at the Victor.

With tomorrow's program, which includes "Film Spoilers" with Charles Conklin and Pearl White in the final chapter of "Heart of the Army," the new week's offerings at the Victor will begin. Mary Miles Minter, who was with Lucille La Verne and her stock company at the Empire, is booked for Tuesday, "The Cure," a picture in which Geraldine Farrar plays with a modern Southern plot as its beginning, and a modern story filled with modern intrigues. At the end of "A Modern Monte Carlo" is scheduled as Wednesday's headliner. Dorothy Kelly and Charles Richman in the last episode of "The Secret Kingdom" is the added attraction.

CHARLEY CHAPLIN TAKES THE CURE.
Olga Petrova will be seen in "The Waiting Soul" at the Colonial, to-morrow and Tuesday. The production is based on the tragic secret of a woman's life. How she ultimately revealed it to her husband forms one of the dramatic scenes. A Big V comedy and Dittmar's animal circus will also be shown on Wednesday and Thursday. Robert Warwick heads a cast including June Elvige and Henry Hull in "The Family Honor," which shows Miss Elvige as a woman of the world who gets a young man into her clutches. Charles Chaplin in "The Cure" is the extra feature.

"Joan the Woman" at Bijou.

Geraldine Farrar, the operatic star, is in Cecil B. de Mille's cinema masterpiece in eleven parts, "Joan the Woman," at the Bijou for a week beginning to-morrow. The story of Joan of Arc is told in the picture production taken on a new meaning. Geraldine Farrar had few equals in her interpretations of tragic heroines in the silent drama. She usually does her part so convincingly that it fairly speaks through the screen version. Richmond will see the entire production as it has been running for nearly five months at the Forty-fourth Street Theater, New York, and at the Majestic Theater, Los Angeles, Cal.

To give the touch of realism, an appropriate musical score was especially written for the production, and will be interpreted here by an orchestra.

"Sweetheart of the Doomed" To-Morrow.

A vindictive siren of Paris and Monte Carlo, notorious for her evil charm and mercenary intrigues, becomes the angel of the armies of France in "Sweetheart of the Doomed," a Triangle-Fox play starring Louise Glaum, which will be shown at the Isis, to-morrow and on Tuesday with a Triangle comedy as an added attraction. On Wednesday and Thursday Dorothy Kelly will be featured in "The Money Mill," which is the twelfth chapter of "The Great Secret," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Baynes are the costars. This picture is transferred to the Isis on account of the week's engagement of Geraldine Farrar at the Bijou.

At the Odeon, Saturday, Gladys Coburn will be featured in "The Battle of Life," a recent William Fox production. The picture opens with a scene in the cellar of an old house in which a group of rats are shown at work. The picture slowly fades, and the Mask," "The Silent Feud," and Marie Walcamp in the "Kidnapped Bride"; while the bill at the Bluebird Tuesday's offering will be a Red Feather production, "The War of the Tong." The entire cast is composed of Chinese players. On Wednesday and Thursday J. Warren Kerrigan and Louise Lovel in "The Measure of a Man," a story of a parson who could fight and preach, will be the bill.
